Khrushchev Blasts Fired Leaders As Plotters

Expect New Purges To Remove All Opposed To Lenin Doctrine

Editor's note — Harold K. Milks covered from Moscow the first stages of the current Communist purge, then flew to Prague on assignment. This dispatch is not subject to the censorship that controls all filing from Moscow.

By HAROLD K. MILKS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — New purges sweeping thousands of Soviet Communist party officials from their jobs are expected to follow the ouster of the Molotov-Malenkov-Kaganovich group from the Kremlin's supreme command.

In Prague it is accepted as a certainty that Nikita Khrushchev and his supporters will lose no time in removing from the lesser echelons of the Communist party all those who, by action or word, have opposed the form of Leninism preached by Khrushchev.

It is too early to outline the probable pattern the purges will take as they move from the top down through state, district and neighborhood organizations of the party.

Expect No Violence
But no violence is expected. It is unlikely the firing squad system Joseph Stalin used against his political enemies will be brought into play. Throughout the Soviet Union, probably many Communist leaders will find their office doors closed. They will be invited to accept jobs as workers on collective farms or in factories.

An appraisal of the Moscow events of the past week points to two big winners.

Two Winners
The first is Khrushchev, who emerged from a weeklong committee meeting in command of a hand-picked Presidium whose members all can be classified as loyal followers.

The second is President Tito of Yugoslavia. He had the satisfaction of seeing the Soviet Central (Continued on Page Seven)

U.S. Chief Justice Dedicates Truman Memorial Library

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren dedicated the Harry S. Truman Memorial Library and its store of historic documents Saturday as a means whereby "peoples of all the earth may... choose the right paths in the years to come."

The former President's nearly eight years in the White House "already is recognized as one of the most momentous periods in the history of our country and the world," the presiding jurist of the U. S. Supreme Court said in a prepared address that climaxed a two-day celebration of the opening of the $21,000,000 library and museum.

Europe Swelters Under Worst Heat Wave In Years

LONDON (AP) — A blistering sun sent the mercury soaring to 105 in Italy Saturday. Most of Europe sweltered in one of the worst heat waves in years.

The 105 high was registered near Bologna. In Rome, a clammy humidity added to the discomfort. At least 13 deaths throughout Italy were attributed to the heat.

The temperature was 104 in Brussels. Belgium listed 11 deaths due to heat.

Germany perspired too. Frankfurt reported thermometer readings of 95. In Yugoslavia the mercury rose to 100 while in Austria it got up to 102.

The worst heat wave in five years shimmered over Switzerland. Nine people died of heart failure in the last three days and doctors blamed temperatures in the high 90's.

The mercury hit 90 at Harrow just outside London, and it was well over 90 at Wimbledon's tennis championships, where Queen Elizabeth II sweltered with 14,000 other spectators.

Most Of Nation Enjoys Sunshine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sunny skies covered almost all of the United States Saturday.

Temperatures were in the 50s and 60s in Washington and Oregon and in the 70s in western Montana around midday. The weather was warm in most other areas and hot in the southwest. The mercury topped the 100 mark in some sections of Arizona and New Mexico.

Showers and thunderstorms occurred from Florida to the South Carolina coast. Several funnel clouds were reported in the Charleston, S. C., area and a number of waterspouts were sighted over the ocean southeast of the city. Hail fell on Charleston.

Student Corrals Bandit With Lid Of Garbage Can

HOUSTON (AP) — A 21-year-old ministerial student armed with a garbage can won a two-block race Saturday and brought down a man who had used a toy pistol while taking $914 at a downtown grocery store.

Mrs. Henry Beckman, 55-year-old wife of the store owner, said the arrested 30-year-old man is the same man who took $6,100 from her at the same hour at the store on May 4.

Heroes of the capture were Jerald Smith, student of theology in Springfield, Ill., and Beckman. Smith has a summer job as clerk in the store.

The two pursued the man unaware that he had lost what proved to be the toy pistol when he was tripped by an unidentified customer as he dashed for the street after taking the money from Mrs. Beckman's cashier cage.

"I got close to him but couldn't quite reach him," Smith said. "I snatched up the lid of a garbage can and whacked him. He dropped the money and I scooped it up with one hand and with the other I picked up the garbage can and whacked him with that, too."

Smith was sitting on the can and the can was sitting on the man when Beckman arrived seconds later.

The man was treated for cuts and bruises at City-County Hospital before being jailed.

Sweden has about 750,000 private automobiles.

Knowland Says Ike Knows Civil Rights Fight Will Tie Up Program

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said Saturday President Eisenhower realizes that an upcoming battle over a civil rights bill may tie up Senate action on all administration legislative requests for eight weeks or longer.

"He is familiar with all eventualities," Knowland, Republican Senate leader said in an interview that indicated this had been discussed at the White House.

Knowland has served notice that on Monday he will ask the Senate to take up the administration civil rights bill, recently passed by the House.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), floor leader of determined Southerners fighting the bill, has promised exhaustive debate although any actual filibuster may be delayed until after a Senate vote on the move to take up the controversial measure.

Russell has promised a long floor fight aimed at amending and rewriting the measure, with an eventual goal of killing it.

Knowland said ahead of time that he is unwilling to put the controversy aside to act upon other noncontroversial measures which the President has asked.

Some legislative measures do have priority, such as compromises of bills that the Senate and House had previously passed in different form, or annual money bills.

Once these are called up, Knowland noted that they also come under the Senate rules for virtually endless debate and can be used as an indirect filibuster against resuming debate on civil rights bills.

Link Arms Found In Alligator To Nine-Year-Old Boy's Death

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The cold blooded alligator, one of Florida's top tourist attractions, is suddenly under suspicion of being a man killer.

It has long been known that the lazy, repulsive-looking reptiles sometimes make unprovoked attacks on humans. Plenty of documented cases are on record but no clearcut case of their killing a person has been established.

But a little more than a week ago a 9-year-old boy, Alan David Rice, disappeared from his home at Eau Gallie, not far from the military base where the earth satellite will be launched. Two days later his badly mangled body, with both arms missing, was found on the overgrown bank of a creek near his home.

Teeth marks on the body were clearly those of an alligator. Hunters killed an 11½ foot specimen found nearby. Inside its stomach they found the boy's arms and other parts of his body.

Whether he had drowned before the gator got to him could not be determined. There were no witnesses. One doctor said the alligator probably killed him; another said the evidence was not sufficient to draw any conclusion.

Conservation officers began removing alligators from the Eau Gallie streams, trapping and moving a dozen small ones and killing four over six feet long.

Within recent years a number of persons have been attacked and injured by alligators in Florida. In 1948 Martha Belle Smith suffered a broken left arm and a lacerated right hand at Weekiwahee Springs in an encounter with an alligator called "O' Nine-foot."

She was swimming near a palm tree under which the reptile had made his lair when he appeared.

SEEK FOUR NAVY MEN WHOSE PLANE CRASHED IN PACIFIC

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Air and sea search was pressed for four Navy men who crashed into foggy Pacific coastal waters Saturday off Trinidad Head, 20 miles to the north of Eureka.

With the plane were Lt. Wesley G. Judd, pilot; Lt. (jg.) Richard C. Perfiti, copilot; Chief Aviation Electronicsman T. R. Smith, crewman, and Ensign A. L. McCloskey, a passenger.

Floating wreckage included a Navy officer's coat and notebook identifying the plane as an SF Grumman Guardian anti-submarine craft based at the North Island Naval Air Station in San Diego.

The plane left Alameda, Calif. Naval Air Station at 4:06 a. m. for Port Angeles, Wash. It was due there at 8:23 a. m. Almost at the same hour, sports fishermen reported finding pieces of wreckage about a mile and a half southwest of Trinidad Head.

David Zeb, Humboldt County aviation director who lives at Trinidad, said part of the wreckage, including a headrest from a plane seat and part of the seat, had pieces of flesh adhering to it.

Links Malenkov To 1948 Purge For Which Six Were Executed

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev Saturday accused three ousted Soviet leaders of being cunning plotters for power. He linked one of them — former Premier Georgi Malenkov — to the notorious "Leningrad case" for which six men were executed in 1954.

The charges were made in a speech before a mass rally of factory workers in Leningrad and broadcast throughout the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev portrayed Malenkov, V. M. Molotov, and Lazar Kaganovich as "hatching cunning schemes" in order to lay their hands on key positions in the Communist party and government.

Dulles Says Foreign Aid Cut Would Hurt Economies Of Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles says the Senate-approved cut in foreign aid "would seriously undermine the economies of allied countries, especially in the Far East."

Dulles also implied that President Eisenhower may ask next year for a sum no smaller than the $3,865,000,000 he wants for his global assistance program during the present 12-month period.

Dulles views were contained in a June 27 memo to the House Foreign Affairs Committee. This was made available by the committee Saturday, along with a June 24 closed-door testimony by Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

Robertson called for standing fast in America's no-dealings policy toward Red China. He hit at what he called the "old school tie group" for saying it is "realistic" to give the Peking regime diplomatic recognition and U.N. membership.

Dulles said some parts of the Senate aid bill would improve the Eisenhower program. But he protested the Senate action in setting ceilings of $1,800,000,000 for arms aid and $600 million for defense support for this year (fiscal 1958) and $1,500,000,000 and $700 million for those items in fiscal 1959.

Eisenhower sought $1,900,000,000 for military assistance this year and $900 million for defense support, which is economic aid to support allied defense efforts. He named no figure for following years, asking instead for a permanent, no-ceiling authorization.

Dulles said the two-year authorization voted by the Senate is a step forward but still falls short of Eisenhower's goal of making military and defense support aid permanent.

BRAIN TUMOR, NOT ACCIDENT INJURIES KILLED TRUCKER

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — A 34-year-old truck driver, injured when he struck a house in Walnut, Ill., died Saturday of a brain tumor in Silver Cross Hospital, an autopsy showed.

The truck driver, Jack Roberts, of Joliet, suffered a brain concussion and cuts when his truck missed a curve on State Highway 92 on the outskirts of Walnut. The truck crashed into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Carpenter. The careening vehicle also destroyed a house trailer and struck an electric line pole before it hit the Carpenter home.

The autopsy showed injuries received in the June 24 crash did not cause Roberts' death, officials said.

Claim Zhukov Holds Political Mortgage On Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's wartime friend, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, is credited here with holding a kind of political mortgage on the power of Soviet boss Nikita Khrushchev.

This results from the help the Red army man gave Khrushchev in the fight against the Molotov-Malenkov faction of the Soviet leadership.

The role and importance of Zhukov were coming increasingly under the attention of Washington officials Saturday both because of their significance in assessing the course of Russian policies from here on and because of the old Eisenhower relationship with the outwardly genial marshal.

This relationship has been used in the past and could be used again, by either Zhukov or Eisenhower, to negotiate on relations between the United States and Russia.

Some American officials say flatly that Khrushchev could not have won his showdown fight with the pro-Stalinist faction trying to unseat him unless he had the support of Zhukov and the other armed forces leaders.

Although the Kremlin conflict was resolved in the Communist party's Central Committee a week ago, the fight is still going on over the country, in a sense, with the top Communist leaders turned like angry beasts on their former comrades.

Under the Soviet Communist system this presumably is one of the techniques for preventing any support for developing for former Foreign Minister Molotov, former Premier Malenkov, former Propaganda Minister Kaganovich and Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov.

So far, the two names which have stood out on the winning side as a result of the eight-day battle within the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party are Khrushchev and Zhukov. Authorities here have concluded that Khrushchev is the strong man and the potential absolute dictator of Russia but that Zhukov is a man he must depend on and reckon with — possibly the one individual who could check any ambitions for autocracy which may show up in Khrushchev's further moves.

In fact, Zhukov, as a military leader and World War II hero, is possibly the only other man in Russia now who could make any kind of competitive bid for top power, but the experts do not cast him in that role.

Supreme Court Hears Arguments In Girard Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both sides squared away Saturday in preparation for Monday's crucial arguments before the Supreme Court in the case of GI William S. Girard.

Beginning shortly after noon, the court will hear four hours of argument, evenly divided between Justice Department lawyers and attorneys for the Illinois soldier facing trial on charges of shooting a Japanese woman.

The question, which has stirred deep concern in Washington and Tokyo, is whether he shall be tried in a Japanese court or in a U.S. Army court-martial.

Girard's case reached the court on an appeal by the government from a ruling in the district court here that he may not be turned over to the Japanese, and on a cross appeal by Girard's lawyers contending the district court should have ordered Girard brought back to this country.

Girard is now restricted to Camp Whittington, Japan. The Justice Department maintained that Girard "has no personal immunity from prosecution by Japan for the killing of a Japanese national in Japanese territory."

Girard's lawyers argued that the district court should have ordered his outright release on a habeas corpus motion.

The government replied Saturday in another brief which said: "The only illegality alleged by petitioner as to his restraint was that he was being restrained 'for the purpose of being delivered over to the government of Japan.'"

"By enjoining petitioner's delivery, the court removed the sole aspect of the custody of which he complained."

INGRID BERGMAN SPEEDS TO BEDSIDE OF ILL DAUGHTER

ROME (AP) — Ingrid Bergman hurried home Saturday from Paris to see her 5-year-old daughter, Isabella, who had to have her appendix removed Friday night.

Miss Bergman said there had been a threat of peritonitis, but that she had been assured that danger was past. She said she had wired her husband, Italian film director Roberto Rossellini, that he need not leave his job in India now to see Isabella.

Miss Bergman said "there is no rift" between herself and her husband and that he would, as planned, finish his work in India in about a month and then return to Rome.

Miss Bergman said she had met Prime Minister Nehru of India at a London party Thursday night, but declined to say whether she had discussed with him her husband's troubles in India, where Rossellini had been involved with an Indian film star.

Conrad-Cox Nuptials In Greene

WHITE HALL—Miss Marcia Lynn Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin L. Cox of this city, became the bride Saturday morning, June 29, of Joseph Francis Conrad of Carrollton in St. John's Catholic church in that city. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Conrad, east of Carrollton.

The Reverend Carl Schmidt officiated during the double ring ceremony. A cousin of the bride, Miss Linda Davis, White Hall, offered selections at the organ during the prelude. They included: "Because," "O Promise Me" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." Clarence Kirbach, Carrollton, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "On this Day O Beautiful Mother," accompanied by Miss Louise Steinacher, Carrollton.

Miss Sharon Conrad and Miss Margaret Ann Conrad, both of Carrollton, sisters of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor and bridesmaid. Donald Steinacher of Carrollton, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

Wears White Point d'esprit

The bride was lovely in a ballerina length gown of white point d'esprit, featuring a Sabrina cut neckline. The fitted bodice was emphasized with a near white satin cummerbund, which formed a modified train at the back. Her veil of illusion was secured to a dainty pillbox and adorned with seed pearls. She carried a show-stopping bouquet of white orchids with pink rosebuds.

The attendants dresses were in poude blue dotted Swiss and also ballerina length. Picture hats and mits of the matching material completed their ensembles. Their flowers were pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Cox chose navy chiffon with a poude blue shade hat and blue accessories for her daughter's wedding. The mother of the bridegroom wore pink lace with white accessories. Each mother wore a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Reception at Hilltop

A reception was held at two o'clock in the afternoon at Hilltop Hotel in White Hall. Two hundred guests were received. The bride's table was covered in white linen with a poude blue net and taffeta skirt ruffle showing. An elaborately trimmed five tiered bride's cake adorned with pink roses and blue forget-me-nots, centered the table. White tapers burned in crystal candelabrae to complete the appointments.

Miss Linda Davis, Miss Carole Jean Seely and Mrs. Robert Hurt

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH F. CONRAD

assisted at the serving table. Miss Janet Gilmore of East St. Louis, presided at the guest register and Miss Judith Anne McCollister was in charge of the gift table. Those assisting at the reception wore sheath cut dresses in pastel shades of polished cotton with matching color accessories.

The newlyweds left immediately following the reception for a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination. Upon their return they will reside in Carrollton.

Mrs. Conrad was graduated from the White Hall high school with the class of 1937. She was formerly employed by the Princess theatre of this city.

The bridegroom was graduated from the St. John's high school, Carrollton, with the class of 1935, after which he attended Illinois State Normal University for two years. He is now employed by McDonnell Aircraft Corporation,

Breakfast and Dance

A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony, at the home of the bridegroom's parents. A dance was held from 9:00 o'clock until midnight, that evening, at the Knight of Columbus hall, Carrollton.

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Conrad was guest of honor at three receptions: a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Linda Davis and Mrs. Robert Hurt, Tuesday evening, June 18, at the home of the former, with fifty guests present; Miss Carol Jean Seely entertained Monday evening, June 24, at a kitchen shower at her home, with a large group of high school friends in attendance; Mrs. L. A. Hardaway was hostess at a miscellaneous shower at her home, Carrollton, with Mrs. James Graves, Mrs. Leonard Stone and Mrs. Robert Best as assisting hostesses.

Concord Festival Features Pageant Of America

CONCORD—Probably one of the most interesting features of the Concord Home-coming program this year will be the "Historical Pageant of America" under the direction of Mrs. Orinda Anderson. Mrs. Orin Horn, mother of Mrs. Anderson, wrote "America in Song and Pageantry."

The pageant is thoroughly original in design and presentation and will feature a mixed chorus of fifty voices from Concord and the surrounding communities who will sing songs during the different eras of American history to be depicted on the stage. This chorus is under the direction of Mrs. Walter Williams with Robert Wegehoff as accompanist.

The pageant will depict the different songs, dances and costumes, which is to include the following eras in American history: Settling of America; the Revolutionary war, expansion of waterways, the Civil War, settling of the West, settling of Illinois, the World War, the depression, World War 2, with several scenes from the war phases and the post war to the present era.

To stage such an elaborate show will require infinite patience and a great amount of skill. Other entries will be announced later. Readers are urged to watch the columns of the paper for further announcements regarding the activities. The program is under the auspices of the Concord PTA and will be presented at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday, July 23 at Concord.

The committee urges the people of Concord and the surrounding area to contact them in order that through their co-operation this "Home-Coming" will be a credit to the community.

Morgan, Cass People At Monmouth Wedding

Many friends and relatives from Jacksonville, Sinclair, Alexander and Beardstown attended the wedding last Sunday, June thirty, when Miss Irma Jean Erlandson became the bride of William U. Duncan at Monmouth, Illinois. The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock, early evening, at the First Lutheran church, with the pastor, the Reverend Raymond Swanson, officiating in the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Erlandson of Monmouth and the groom is the son of Mrs. Mary Louise Duncan of Alexis and the late Murray Duncan.

Vases at the altar of the church contained white daisies and glads. Tapers in candelabrae formed the background for twin baskets of the same blossoms on either side of the altar. White bows marked the pews reserved for the families.

Richard Johnson served as the organist and accompanied Mrs. Gerald Luman.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Keith Erlandson of Smithshire, was her matron of honor and the groom's sister, Miss Carolyn Duncan, Alexis, was bridesmaid. Little Miss Mary Lou Erlandson, a niece of the bride, was the flower girl and a nephew, Jerry Erlandson, was ring bearer.

John Axcell of Galesburg served as best man and Keith Erlandson, Smithshire, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Ushers were Frank Duncan, brother of the groom, Alexis; Rodney C. Air, Alexis and Jerry McReynolds, Rock Island.

The bride's gown was of Chantilly lace and nylon marquisette over satin. The lace bodice gave an off-shoulder effect over the satin underlip. The neckline was finished in a modified V and sleeves were long tapering to points over the hands. The full skirt was in lace and net panels over hoops and crinolines. Her circular veil of illusion was caught to a crown of pearls. For something old the bride carried a handkerchief that had been carried by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Charles Erlandson. Her bouquet was of white gladiolus and Calla lilies and her only ornament a single strand of pearls, the gift of her bridegroom.

The bride's two attendants and the little flower girls were dressed identically in white Chantilly lace on taffeta. The skirts were full, falling waist length and each wore a blue headband. The attendants carried bouquets of blue tinted daisies. The flower girl carried the rings on a white pillow.

A reception was held in the parlors of the church immediately following the wedding. The bride's cake was four tiered and encircled with ivy and blue daisies. Cutting and serving the cake were Miss Irene Hemmert and Mrs.

Carson Dowell. Coffee was poured by Mrs. George Liverman and Mrs. Dale Houston and punch served by Mrs. Robert Cunningham and Mrs. Gerald Galbraith. In charge of gifts were Miss Josie McCleary, Miss Lucille Gillon and Mrs. David Anderson. Miss Verla Vance registered guests.

Lashmett-Sellars Nuptials Held At First Baptist In Winchester

WINCHESTER—White gladioli against greenery illuminated by tapers burning in candelabra at the altar of the First Baptist church here formed the setting for the wedding Sunday, June thirty, when Miss Carole Ann Lashmett became the bride of Robert Sellars.

Before the ceremony Miss Pam Breeding sang, "O Promise Me" and "Because" and at the close of the service, performed by the pastor, Reverend William Sealock, "The Lord's Prayer." The soloist was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Nora Beam.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lashmett and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sellars.

The bride wore a street length frock of crystaletta made on princess lines with a snug fitting bodice and V neckline. Insertions of nylon organza interspersed with the crystaletta formed the paneled skirt that extended full over crinoline petticoats. A row of tiny covered buttons ran from the front neckline to the waist and the same effect was repeated at the back.

The bride's fingertip veil was secured to a shirred net cap embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a Colonial style bouquet and wore a pearl necklace, the gift of her bridegroom.

Miss Jean Sellars, a sister of the groom, was maid of honor and Miss Nancy Coultas served as bridesmaid. Both wore pink crystaletta styled similar to the bride's gown. They wore headbands with brief noseveils, matching their gowns and carried Colonial bouquets of pink and white.

A niece of the bride, Myra Sue Lashmett, was flower girl and wore pink and blue organza. She carried a miniature Colonial bouquet.

Larry Lashmett, brother of the bride, served as best man and James Riggs was groomsmen. Ushers were Warren Lashmett, brother of the bride, Terry Airmann of Roodhouse and Maurice Spencer, Winchester. Mr. Spencer and Mr. Airmann lighted tapers at the altar before the ceremony.

Stephen-Parsano Nuptials At Virginia Christian Church

VIRGINIA—Miss Helen Dolores Stephen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stephen, of Virginia and George F. Parsano of Ipava, were married Sunday afternoon, June 30, in the Virginia Christian church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Adams, pastor of the church. The couple pledged their vows standing on a white Tree of Life carpet before the altar decorated in ferns and white gladioli, with tapers burning in low brass candelabra.

Miss Celia Greenwood, organist, played "To A Wild Rose," "Traumerei," "The Prayer Perfect" and "Andantino," in D flat, as a prelude before the ceremony. She also accompanied the soloist, Miss Jennie Lou Hughes, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "Always."

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Carol Stephen. The groom's attendant was James Bucker of Ipava. Edmund Snowden of Vermont and Warren Stephen of Casey were the ushers.

The bride's gown was a lovely creation of Chantilly nylon lace in rose design over taffeta. The bodice was fitted, and the lace bolero featured long sleeves pointed at the hand. A band of lace finished the neckline. The full ballerina length skirt was gathered in a bustle of pleats in the back. Her fingertip veil, with blusher of nylon illusion, fell from a small lace hat. She carried a white prayerbook topped with a gardenia and showered with small white carnations.

The bride's attendant wore a gown of frosted nylon over green taffeta. The bodice was fitted and she wore a bolero which featured a Peter Pan collar and short sleeves. She wore short white nylon gloves. Her headpiece was a small beige flower hat and her corsage was of yellow carnations. The bride's mother wore a dark green taffeta print. Her accessories were beige and her corsage pink carnations.

Mrs. Parsano, mother of the groom, chose navy silk with navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The color scheme of green and white was used at the reception following the ceremony which was held in the church parlor. The table was covered with white linen and lace and the three-tiered bride's cake was all white, topped by a miniature bride and groom under a white flower arch. It was encircled at the base with ferns and white carnations. Crystal candelabra on either side of the cake held slim white tapers. The punch bowl was placed at one end of the table.

Mrs. Richard Rutledge and Robert Belville of Ipava served the cake and punch, assisted by Mrs. Carl Peterson and Mrs. Richard Hughes. Mrs. Paul Watkins was in charge of gifts and Miss Jennie Lou Hughes registered the guests.

Accessories And Trim To Feature Fur In Fall

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Furbearing fashions in high colors and easy silhouettes make the top headlines for fall.

As some 200 fashion editors representing newspapers throughout the country converge on New York for the National Press Week previews of fall fashions, buyers have completed their orders for coats, suits and dresses which promise American women a new high in elegance, to coincide with the record high in national prosperity.

The fall and winter of 1957-58 promises to be one of the most brilliant in history, if one may judge by the luxury of its fashions. The trend toward greater formality continues in all categories of fashion. Fabrics are more varied and luxurious than ever before, colors run the full gamut of the rainbow and practically everything is trimmed with fur.

So great is the importance of the fur-trimmed costume for fall that fur coat manufacturers are complaining that the garment makers are creating a shortage. Everything from evening dresses to daytime ensembles comes with its fur trimming this season, accessories go all out for pelt. There are fur handbags, fur hats, fur belts, fur scarfs in addition to a new rash of fur collars on cloth coats and fur trimmings on fall suits.

Back in the spotlight are the little foxes—red, blue, white and silver—in a quantity not seen since the 1930s. Fluffy fox collars glimmer many winter coats. Evening dresses may have fox borders at the hemline. There are fox jackets and fox stoles and even fox linings for some of the new short coats.

As to color, red is the favorite, and it looks as if the little red dress may outpoint the little black dress this fall. Every color of red, from flame to garnet, is seen in the new collections. But there also are greens, blues, purples and gold tones in profusion. Women who up to now have invested in blacks and neutrals for the backbone of their wardrobes are going to be tempted to splurge in technicolor this fall.

Is Supreme Court Becoming Law Making Body Of U.S.?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nine-man Supreme Court is steadily widening its guardianship over the rights and freedom of individuals, including Communists. It is doing so by narrowing the limits on how far government—city, state or federal—can go in trying people, questioning them, judging them, segregating them, or interfering with them and their liberties.

It has been acting with increasing firmness since 1954, and particularly this year. Its decisions don't please everyone. Southerners have attacked it for banning segregation in public schools and elsewhere. Others in Congress have blasted it for its rulings on the side of Communists, defendant in courts, witnesses before committees.

The court refuses to stop or back up. Segregation is an example of how far it is willing to go in asserting its authority.

Congress, the government's only lawmaking body, because of Southern opposition has done nothing in the 20th century to wipe out state laws against the segregation of Negroes. The court stepped into this gap.

It outlawed segregation in the schools on the ground that segregation means unequal treatment and discrimination against citizens. Thus the court, in effect, has become in the field of civil rights the American lawmaking body.

In the past five years the court has:

1. Forced the Eisenhower administration to be far more careful in branding government workers security risks.

2. Ordered the Justice Department to deal more openly with people it brings to trial, even to revealing pertinent information from its secret files.

3. Made it tougher for the Justice Department, which has been trying Communists in wholesale lots, to try them in the future.

4. Stuffed Congress itself by ruling that its committees—if they want to punish a witness for not answering questions—must ask questions that are publicly useful and not merely for the sake of headlines or to injure a witness.

5. Not only consistently backed a witness' right to avoid self-incrimination by taking the Fifth Amendment but has insisted the amendment is for the protection of the innocent as well as a shield for those with something to hide.

6. Knocked out the right of the armed forces to court-martial servicemen for crimes committed while in service.

7. Ruled out court-martial—at least for capital offenses—for civilians accompanying the armed forces in peacetime.

8. Forbidden states to try Communists for sedition on the ground sedition is a national security problem and the federal law on the subject has superseded state law.

GRAIN BROKERS WATCH FOR U.S. WHEAT FORECAST

CHICAGO, (U) — Grain brokers await the government's July 1 winter wheat production forecast with more than usual interest because of the somewhat confused weather picture.

The report will be issued Wednesday, forecasting also total production of spring wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye and acreage for sorghums.

Improved weather and harvesting conditions caused wheat to slump this week on the board of trade after an upturn of three weeks. Corn, oats and soybeans managed to stay slightly ahead of a week ago.

New style wheat closed Friday 3 1/2 to 5 cents lower than a week ago. Friday, corn was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, oats 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower, rye unchanged to 1/4 down, soybeans unchanged to 1 1/2 up, and hard 15 to 27 cents a hundred pounds higher.

C. M. Galvin, crop expert for Francis I. Dupont & Co., this week predicted winter wheat production of about 679 million bushels, down about 37 million bushels from the government's June 1 forecast and 43 million less than his own June forecast.

Galvin forecast total wheat production at 918 million bushels, down 52 million from the last government estimate.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK, (U) — Industrial shares skyrocketed to a new historic peak this week, giving Wall Street plenty to celebrate on a long Independence Day weekend.

For the stock market as a whole prices on average were back at the previous 1957 high.

Despite the July Fourth holiday, traditionally a dull time for the market, signifying the start of the summer vacation period, the average this week made its biggest weekly advance since the week ended Dec. 8, 1956.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $4.20 to $186.40, exactly equalling the 1957 high. The industrial component reached a new high of $277.30, topping the previous summit of $276.30 attained Aug. 2, 1956.

The Dow-Jones Industrial average was at a new 1957 top of 516.89 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index reached a new yearly high of 46.69.

Veteran Wall Streeters could recall no parallel for the amazingly vigorous rise on the eve of July 4. Advance predictions of a dull week because of the holiday and the vacation period were a dime a dozen.

Many items of corporate news were bullish. Chrysler's was among them. The firm set new records for first half sales and earnings.

The wide gyrations of Have Industries prompted the New York Stock Exchange to ban the use of "stop orders" in that stock just as it had with fast stepping Lukens Steel in April. This was intended to restrain wild gyrations in the issue. But Have added 9 1/2 points this week. The previous week it gained 18 1/2.

Gains of other specialties this week included Foster - Wheeler 10 1/4, Revlon 2 1/4, Bell & Howell 5 1/4, and American Machine & Foundry 3 1/4.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Brown Co., unchanged at 18 1/2; On 84,700 shares; Arkansas Louisiana Gas, up 2 1/4 to 26 1/4; New British Dominion Oil, up 1/4 to 3 1/4; Pancoast Petroleum, off 1/4 to 11 1/4; and Deacon-Palmer Oils, up 1/16 to 2 9/16.

The five most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange this week were:

Avco, up 1 1/4 to 308.70; Bethlehem Steel, up 1 1/4 to 49 1/4; General Motors, up 1 1/4 to 44; Chrysler, up 3/4 to 79 1/4; and Standard Oil (New Jersey) up 1/4 to 68 1/4.

Soviet Charges U.S. Threatens Far East Peace

LONDON, (U) — The Soviet government accused the United States Saturday night of threatening the peace in the Far East by introducing "atomic units" into South Korea.

Moscow radio broadcast a government statement saying: "It is easy to imagine what the situation would lead to if the North Korean-Chinese side, on its part, also started to introduce into North Korea new types of armaments—including, for instance, aircraft capable of carrying the latest armaments, and to seek to equip the army with such armaments."

The United States decided late last month to strengthen its forces in South Korea with modern equipment in answer to what it said was Red China's and North Korea's violation of the Korean armistice agreement by introducing new planes, weapons and tanks into the north. Saturday's Russian statement denied that Communist China or North Korea have violated the armistice agreement.

Knowland Says Ike Knows About Civil Rights Fight

Knowland said he now expects the civil rights dispute to continue "until about September first."

"There should be quite a bit of legislation to consider even after civil rights is decided," Knowland said. "We probably may have to stay in session until mid-September."

Knowland mentioned the Eisenhower-backed bills for federal school aid and immigration revision as just two examples, adding that there are many more.

The House bill would do these things:

Empower the federal attorney general to get injunctions to protect citizens whose civil rights—including voting rights—have been violated or threatened; set up a federal commission to investigate complaints of civil rights violations; create a special civil rights division in the Justice Department.

Friday Night Scores

By DON WEISS

The Associated Press
This nerve-numbing National League pennant race, closest first-to-fifth scramble in the modern era, is back to normal in one respect. Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell is beating Cincinnati again.

After two early losses to his favorite NL "cousins" and bogged down in the worst start in his major league life, the St. Louis lefthander came through with his first good game in nearly a month Friday night—just when the Cards needed it.

Their 4-3 victory in 11 innings pushed St. Louis back into first place in the flip-flop race after a week's absence, dumping the Redlegs into second, a half game behind.

Mizell, winning only his second in eight decisions, did it with a nine-hit, seven strikeout performance. Of his 39 major league victories, Mizell owns 12 over the Redlegs, five last year.

Joe Cunningham's double drove home the winner for the Cards. Milwaukee, in third place a game behind, lost ground when beaten by Chicago 7-4, but fourth place Brooklyn stepped up to within two of the top on Roy Campanella's three-run homer that beat Robin Roberts 6-5 and dropped fifth place Philadelphia 3 1/2 off the pace. New York's Giants routed Pittsburgh, 11-6 in the other NL game.

New York's American League leaders maintained their three-game edge over the Chicago White Sox, rallying to nip Washington 5-3 in 10 innings while the White Sox routed Cleveland, 14-4. Boston regained third place from the Indians, downing Baltimore 7-5 and snapping Billy Lee's seven-game win streak, and Detroit's Jim Bunning ran his record to 10-2 with an eight-hit, 8-4 decision over Kansas City.

Mizell had a 3-1 lead over Cincinnati for seven innings. George Crowe doubled home two runs in the eighth to tie it and Vinegar Bend had to throw three more blanks before Cunningham doubled off reliever Don Gross to score Ken Boyer, who singled and moved up on a sacrifice. Hank Aaron blasted his 27th homer and seventh in eight games and Johnny Logan hit his fourth home run, but that was about all the Braves could manage against the Cubs' Don Elston. The Brooklyn castoff, 2-0 with both victories over Milwaukee, needed help from Turk Lown in the ninth. Jerry Kindall's home run, his first in the majors, helped chase loser Bob Buhl in the second inning.

Campanella's homer was the 23rd this season off Roberts, now

Hoad To Sign Record $125,000 Pro Tennis Pact

NEW YORK, (U)—Wimbledon tennis champion Lew Hoad of Australia will sign a record $125,000 professional contract Monday and will make his pro debut in Jack Kramer's tournament of champions, starting at Forest Hills Saturday.

Although not officially confirmed, this was learned indisputably Saturday from a source who has helped in the negotiations. Both promoter Kramer and the Aussie Davis Cup ace are known to have reached virtual agreement on terms.

Hoad will play in two professional tournaments, the one at Forest Hills and another at Los Angeles beginning July 29, and then will join Kramer's troupe on a tour of Europe, South Africa and Australia.

He won't get a crack at Pancho Gonzales, the world pro champion, until next January—except possibly in tournament play. Gonzales, involved in a contract dispute with Kramer, won't make the European tour.

Hoad, who swept past fellow countryman Ashley Cooper in the Wimbledon finals 6-2, 6-1, 6-2, is scheduled to arrive by air Monday from England.

The contract is the best offered a player. It guarantees $125,000 over a two-year period. Hoad will get 20 per cent of all gate receipts and a five per cent "incentive bonus" for all matches he wins. The contract runs 25 months through August, 1959.

Ken Rosewall, Hoad's former teammate who turned pro last January, gets 20 per cent. Gonzales receives 25 per cent under his present arrangement but will be cut to 20 per cent.

THIEVES STEAL BRIDE'S $1,000 TROUSSEAU

CHICAGO, (U)—A young couple's wedding tulle was almost called off after thieves stole the bride's $1,000 trousseau.

The bride's plight was eased when a women's apparel shop, normally closed on Saturdays, agreed to open up especially for the bride to select a new outfit.

Mrs. Agnes Vasisko, 24, of New Brighton, Pa., and her fiancé, Roy Asmusen, 29, of suburban Des Plaines, were dining in a restaurant Friday night when thieves ransacked their car. Fortunately Asmusen, carried the wedding rings in his pocket.

The wedding party waited while Miss Vasisko, a student nurse, bought her new outfit. The ceremony took place at noon, two hours behind schedule.

Dulles Says Cut In Foreign Aid Will Hurt Allies

Despite Dulles' plea, the House committee last week voted to slash 300 million dollars more off arms aid but the Senate did for this year and 100 millions more off defense support. But the House group left the fiscal 1959 amounts open.

Robertson took issue with various groups who he said contend an easier policy should be followed toward Red China.

Among them, he said, "There is what I call the old school type group which maintains that in any event we must be realistic and acknowledge the existence and power of the Peiping regime by granting it recognition and U.N. membership—as if 142,000 American casualties and some 15 billion dollars of our treasure were insufficient to make us take a realistic view of the existence and character of this regime."

Policy Of Peace
Khrushchev declared the Soviet Union would pursue relentlessly the policy of peaceful coexistence.

Moscow radio also took note of reports from Warsaw that Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich were under house arrest. The radio described such reports as absurd and said the three men were seen "walking the streets of Moscow" and attending local Communist party meetings.

National Leaguers Favored In 24th All-Star Game

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—Craig Wood made a rather intriguing statement at a gathering of the golfing clan at Mike Manuche's. "Dick Mayer is the first United States Open champion in many years with a classic swing," remarked Wood, with pardonable pride. The former Open and Masters champion had a hand in Mayer's development at Winged Foot, you see.

"Mayer is a stylist in the real sense," stressed Wood. "No eccentricities, idiosyncrasies, doodads, hitches, lunge. No personal mannerisms. Dick just plays it straight. The swing is pure, natural. With it, is superb putting and a perfect golfing disposition. The boy is monumentally cool, so much so that he actually frightens you at times."

How could Wood say that Mayer is the first Open champion in years with a classic swing? How about Ben Hogan? "Hogan is first to tell you that his swing was manufactured," said the other old pro. "Manufactured well, but manufactured, and it looks manufactured."

"Get back to Byron Nelson," said the reporter. "How about Lord Byron? Wasn't he a picture golfer?" "Nelson's whole body dipped a little as he came into the ball," recalled the old pro.

How about Cary Middlecoff? "Middlecoff has a personalized cocking of the hips," pointed out the old pro. "Nothing wrong with it, but it's specialized."

"Mayer's swing has a lot of everything in it," cut in Gene Sarazen. "He has cleverly wrapped up the best ideas of all the stars. When anything goes wrong, he consults another pro. He has smartened up considerably since he took the 7 on the final hole at Baltusrol in 1934."

"It is as a putter that Mayer really excels. Check back on the Inverness play and you'll find that he led the field by many less putts. Mayer and Middlecoff are superior readers of greens. To them, it's like reading a good book and they remember the last chapter."

"Mayer is a beautiful open face swinger of the Harry Vardon type with perfect hand action. The shut faces who developed in the late 1930's are on the way out. They have to start hooking."

The discussion of previous Open champions went on. "Jack Fleck is much better than he is given credit for," said Sarazen, "but not too intelligent on the greens."

"Julius Boros makes miraculous shots, but is too inclined to take things in stride. Maybe it's the $100,000 Jules won at George May's Tam o'Shanter World. Lew Worsham and Bob Toski didn't amount to much after scoring there and Ted Kroll has yet to get back on his pins. They've got to be hungry in this game, too."

Funny how all golf discussions wind up with Samuel Jackson Snead.

As natural as Snead, is the finest compliment that can be paid a golfer.

And Sam Snead is not the first truly great golfer who never won the United States Open.

Althea Gibson Wins Women's Singles In Finals At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England. (AP)—Althea Gibson, a Negro from Harlem's teeming sidewalks, Saturday won the Wimbledon women's singles tennis championship and fought back the tears as she received congratulations from England's smiling queen.

The tall, 29-year-old New York girl overwhelmed Darlene Hard, a chipmy blonde waitress from Montebello, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, on the famed center court steaming in 100-degree heat.

Later she teamed with Miss Hard to add the women's doubles crown with a 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Mary Hawton and Mrs. Thelma Long of Australia. But her bid for a rare tennis triple was thwarted when she and Neale Fraser of Australia were beaten by Miss Hard and Australia's Mervyn Rose in mixed doubles, final event on the long day's program, 6-4, 7-5.

Making it a surprising day of glory for Uncle Sam, a pair of grand old American veterans—Gardnar Mulloy, 42, of Denver and Budgie Patty, 33, of Los Angeles and Paris—upset Australia's prized men's doubles team of Lew Hoad and Fraser, 8-10, 6-4, 6-4.

It was the tournament's only major championship reversal. The Australians, teamed as future Davis Cup defenders, were seeded No. 1. The two Yank warblers were unseeded. Thus the United States, whose tennis has been on the decline, had a role in every title except the men's singles, won Friday by Hoad.

But it was strictly Althea's day at historic Wimbledon which in all its 80 years has never had a Negro singles champion, man or woman.

Queen Elizabeth II, a horse racing rather than a tennis fan, came to Wimbledon for the first time in her life to see the match. The Queen presented the trophy—a large golden plate—to Miss Gibson and shook hands with both the champion and Miss Hard, the runnerup.

"It was very hot in the stands so I'm sure it must have been terribly hot on the court," the Queen said. The two players agreed. So did 17,000 spectators, sweltering in shirt sleeves and sun-bath dresses.

Althea received the trophy with a champion's dignity. Then the star, who learned to play tennis with crude paddles in New York's crowded uptown Manhattan, clenched her jaws to keep back the tears welling in her eyes.

A year ago Miss Gibson came to Wimbledon on the wave of a spectacular worldwide winning streak only to bow in the quarter-finals to Shirley Fry, who won the title, later married and moved to Australia.

ELLIS CHEVROLET PONY LEAGUERS MOVE TO 2ND PLACE STANDING

John Ellis Chevrolet Pony League team dropped its first game of the season Thursday night to move down to 2nd place in the loop standings with five wins and one loss. U.C.T. takes over the number one position with five wins and no losses.

Ellis and U.C.T. have a game to playoff with Ellis leading by one run, 9-8, with an inning and a half to play in the makeup game. The game was halted due to opening night ceremonies.

Ferris To Retire After 50 Years Of AAU Service

NEW YORK (AP)—Dan Ferris, the bright-eyed Irishman who has given 50 years of his life to the Amateur Athletic Union and good sportsmanship, is quitting at last, but not entirely.

He couldn't quit sports flat. He will go on fighting for amateurism, cheering on young athletes, and advising the A.A.U. But he will relinquish the post of secretary-treasurer he has held since 1927.

"I've always preached good sportsmanship," he said. "That's my life. If a man is taught good sportsmanship in active competition, it stays with him as good character and fairness in business."

He can look back on his career without regrets. If any man has stood for ideals in American athletics it has been Ferris. Often he has been in the center of a storm, as he was in the West Santee case, but he has never raised his voice or lost his temper. A sturdy man with pink cheeks and white hair, he has become the elder statesman of the amateurs.

It was on July 27, 1907, that Ferris came to the A.A.U. as secretary to the late James E. Sullivan. On Sunday, July 7, Ferris becomes 68 years old. It would not be an exaggeration to say that Ferris and the A.A.U. are synonymous.

"I have made up my mind to retire," said Ferris. "I've been taken good care of over the years although probably I haven't made as much as I might have in business. But our people have arranged a retirement program for me that will be sufficient."

"I have enjoyed the work. It has been wonderful."

The A.A.U. is a strange organization. There is only a paid staff of nine and an annual budget of $80,000. Headquarters is a few cluttered offices high in the Woolworth Building looking out on New York Harbor. But all across the country thousands of men and women devote many hours on a volunteer basis to furthering amateur sports.

Schmidt Brilliant In Relief As Cardinals Whip Cincinnati, 13-3

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Willard Schmidt pitched seven and one-third scoreless relief innings and Ken Boyer and Stan Musial homered as the first-place St. Louis Cardinals hammered Cincinnati, 13-3, Saturday.

Boyer knocked in four RBIs with a three-run home run in the first inning and a sacrifice fly. Musial and Joe Cunningham shared six RBIs for the winners.

Schmidt gave the rugged Rhinelanders only eight hits in his long stint and struck out seven. Johnny Klippstein pitched two-thirds of an inning and was trampled upon for four runs on four hits, the big blow being Boyer's three-run home run.

Murry Dickson, 40, troubled recently by a sore arm, saw his 4-0 lead sliced to 4-3 in the second inning on singles by George Crowe and Don Hoak and Ed Bailey's thunderous three-run home run.

Don Blasingame's lead off single and singles by Musial and Cunningham preceded Boyer's home run.

Cornell's Rowing Crew Beats Yale In Regatta Finals

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England. (AP)—Cornell's mighty heavyweight crew and Princeton University's sturdy lightweight swept to the featured eight-oar prizes Saturday in the finals of the Henley Regatta on the choppy Thames.

Cornell's big red sweepers completed a perfect season outdistancing Yale, with four Olympians at the oars, in the All-American race for the grand challenge trophy.

In a bitterly-contested race over the mile and 550 yard course, the boys from Ithaca, N. Y., won by a half boat length about 31 feet from their collegiate rivals, whom they'd beaten twice previously this year. The time against a heavy headwind was 6 minutes, 53 seconds—23 seconds slower than the record Cornell set Friday in whipping Russia in the semifinals.

Earlier, Princeton's 155-pounders retained the challenge cup with a length victory over the tough National Provincial Bank crew of London. The winning time was 7 minutes, 8 seconds.

While the United States carried off the two big prestige prizes, symbols of world supremacy in rowing, the Russians won two lesser events and saw their Olympic champion, Vyacheslav Ivanov, beaten in the diamond skulls.

A six-foot-four Australian, Stuart McKenzie reversed the order of the Melbourne Olympics by whipping the Russian by the slender margin of four feet. The time was 8 minutes, 25 seconds.

Russia won the double skulls when their Olympic champions, Jurig Tjukalov and Alexandre Berkoutov, beat the British pair of G. W. Baker and M. A. Spracklin in 7:41. And the Soviet Union's fours without cox, the Wings of the Soviet, whipped the London Rowing Club in 7:35 after the English hit the booms in the semifinals.

Boston Routs Baltimore, 11-2, Behind Sullivan

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox routed Baltimore 11-2 Saturday as Frank Sullivan turned in his fifth consecutive victory.

Jackie Jensen's 11th home run, Billy Klaus' ninth with a mate aboard and a two-run triple by Frank Malzone were the biggest blows.

The triumph was the eighth of the season for Sullivan and strengthened Boston's hold on third place in the American League race.

American League Has Series Margin, 13-10, NL Has Won Last 6 Of 7

By JACK HAND

ST. LOUIS, (AP)—The National League team with five Cincinnati Redlegs in the starting lineup is favored over the New York Yankee-dominated American League squad in the 24th All-Star game to be played Tuesday at Busch Stadium.

In recent years, the National has whittled the American's series margin to 13-10 by winning six of the last seven games. Ironically, much of this has been at the expense of manager Casey Stengel whose Yanks usually humble the opposition in the World Series. As an All-Star manager, Casey has won only once, 1954, in six attempts.

Back in St. Louis for the first time since 1938 when the American League finished on top 5-2, the annual mid-season contest is sure to draw a capacity crowd of 31,000. The long range weather forecast calls for hot, humid weather with scattered thundershowers.

The game will be beamed on network (NBC) radio and television across the nation as part of the new five-year contract by which baseball gets $3,250,000 per year for the All-Star and World Series rights. Sixty per cent of this amount goes to the player pension fund.

Game time is 1:30 p. m. (CDT) with a series of alternatives in case of bad weather. If it should be rained out Tuesday afternoon it would be played Tuesday night. If not then, Wednesday morning or afternoon. The National has been made a 6 to 5 man-to-man choice.

Manager Walter Alton of Brooklyn and Stengel, who got their jobs with pennant-winning performances in 1956, won't name their starting pitchers until Monday. The rest of the lineup already has been chosen by vote of the fans with heavy Cincinnati participation.

In fact, the Cincinnati vote was so heavy that all National starters, except Stan Musial, would have been Redlegs if Commissioner Ford Frick hadn't stepped in. Frick put Willie Mays of New York in center field and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee in right instead of Cincinnati's Gus Bell and Wally Post. He also arbitrarily named Musial for first base but it turned out "The Man" from St. Louis already had enough votes to offset the Cincinnati campaign for their George Crowe. It will be Musial's 14th all-star game, a record.

The Redlegs' Johnny Temple will be on second, Roy McMillan at short, Don Hoak at third, Frank Robinson in left and Ed Bailey catching. Bell also was picked to the squad by Alton whose 25-man roster includes six each from Cincinnati and Milwaukee, four from St. Louis, three from his own Dodgers, two each from the Phillies and Giants and one each from Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Haled before the arbiter in District Court Saturday, the four—Michael Wherry and Michael Pfeiffer, both 19, and Raymond Laub and Richard Duveneck, both 20—were viewed more in sorrow than in anger by Judge Robert Hansen.

"If you were Cubs fans I'd excuse you," the court said, "but as Braves fans, I can't. You shouldn't have added to the other indignities suffered by the team last night."

Judge Hansen held the case open until the end of the baseball season.

Bill McAllister whipped Ron Walls, 6-3, 6-3 to take third place in the consolation playoffs.

Pierce Notches 12th Victory As White Sox Deal Indians 5-1 Loss

CHICAGO (AP)—Billy Pierce, stylish Chicago White Sox southpaw, became the major leagues' first 12-game winner when he hurled a 5-1 victory over Cleveland here Saturday.

Pierce allowed eight hits but managed to scatter most of them harmlessly as he vanquished Bob Lemon, who was pitching despite a sore elbow.

Lemon, who now has lost seven out of 12 decisions, allowed five hits in six innings and Bud Daley was nicked for one more.

Earl Torgeson tripled in the first inning and Larry Doby followed with his No. 8 homer.

Wildness cost Lemon three runs in the sixth. Nellie Fox opened with a walk, and after Torgeson sacrificed Doby was purposely passed. Minnie Minoso drew another walk to load the bases. Jim Rivera then singled two home, and when he drew a wild throw from Dick Brown on a steal of second Minoso trotted home from third.

Singles by Dick Williams, Chico Carrasquel and Brown produced the lone run off Pierce in the seventh.

Chicago Trips Milwaukee, 3-2, In Pitcher's Duel

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Chicago Cubs beat the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 Saturday night in a game marked by sharp pitching despite the failure of both starters to go the distance before a crowd of 43,053, the largest of the season in County Stadium.

The victory, his eighth against seven defeats, went to the Cubs' rookie right-hander Dick Drott who left in the seventh after Andy Pafko, in a pinch battering assignment, belted his first home run of the season.

Drott, who struck out 15 Braves in an earlier game, allowed six of the Braves' eight hits. Relievers Dick Littlefield and Turk Lown combined to save the victory for Drott who struck out only four Saturday night.

The defeat was charged to veteran Milwaukee left-hander Warren Spahn who allowed all the Cubs runs and six of their seven hits. Spahn's record is now 8-7. He left when Pafko took his batting turn and homered. Don McMahon worked the last two innings for the Braves.

The victory was the second straight for the seventh place Cubs over the Braves who remained third in the National League race, two games behind league leader St. Louis and only one game ahead of the fourth place Brooklyn Dodgers.

Probably the most treasured trophy in the large collection Jim Buckley has acquired during his fabulous golfing career is the 1935 Caddies championship trophy, his first tournament victory. Since that time, Jim has gone on to become a top-flight golfer in local circles, and usually he's the man you have to beat in the Nichols Park Open or the City Championship finals. Always a contender, Jim has only been beaten four times when he's reached the finals of the Park Open or City Tourney, 3 times in the Nichols Park Open to Jerry Barber, Bud Maddox and Jim Blesse, and once again to Barber in the City playoffs back in 1940.

Buckley has annexed 7 City Championship titles, 12 Nichols Park Open titles and has been the top man over at the Country Club Tourney 12 times, probably an all-time record for a local linksman. The City titles came to 'Buck' in 1941 and '42, 1946 when he defeated Fairfield 2 up, 1949 and 1950 and then again in 1952 and 1953. In order to retain the City trophy for permanent possession, a golfer must win the City Championship three straight years, a feat that has eluded Buckley three times. Three Virginia Country Club 1st place awards are also in Buckley's collection plus numerous other trophies from various tournaments throughout the state. Also dotting the trophy mantle case is a large Elks 1st place award Jim won in 1951. In 1950, Jim was a runner-up in the championship flight of the Central Illinois Golf tournament.

In winning the Elks Golf Tournament in 1948, 1949 and 1950 to gain permanent possession of the award, Jim shot a blistering 27 for nine holes and a total 59 for eighteen holes to set a course record at Nichols Park in 1950, a record he still holds. Jim started his golfing game in 1932 while serving as a caddy at the Country Club and in 1940 and 1941, while attending Illinois College, Buckley was the conference champion. After serving his Army hitch, in which he also became well known for his fine game of golf, Buckley returned to Jacksonville and Illinois College to complete his education. Jim then won his third college conference title in 1947.

Whether Charlie Blesse's sketch of Jim will come as any surprise to him, I don't know. For the first time since Charlie and I started working out these weekly sketches together, this has been our first hint to the person we're thinking of honoring, we more or less like for it to be a surprise. But Buckley's case was different. He's won so many titles, no one seemed to know just how many, so we had to do the next best thing, we finally asked Jim and he had a little difficulty in remembering. After all, it has been a long time since you brought your first trophy home Jim.

Bob Shields, golf pro at the Jacksonville Country Club, has announced that Patty Berg will appear at the local club Tuesday, July 16. Patty, a longtime favorite among the professional women golfers, will conduct a 45 minute clinic and then she'll play a nine-hole exhibition. As I understand it, the public is cordially invited to attend Patty's demonstration. Other news from the club—Bob Bradley qualified for the National Junior Golf Tourney held at Decatur this past week.

Jacksonville fans will have their eyes on the four local golfers attempting to win the big money at the Tam O'Shanter in August. Jerry Barber, Willie Barber, Don Fairfield and Bob Shields of the Country Club are going to be in this year's golf classic at Chicago. Gloria Shields, wife of the club's pro, is a top-notch golfer also. Mrs. Shields fired a 79 on the club course last week and finished 4th in an Iowa medal tourney recently.

Francis "Wildman" Kelly of Macomb had some tough luck when his car developed engine trouble on the 18th lap of the feature race with Kelly leading the pack. Kelly also had the same trouble in the second heat event and he was forced to leave the races both times. There were no spills during the evening but several drivers ended up on the half-mile track, but each time they came back over the hump to get back into their races. Another large turnout was on hand for the Morgan county speedway stock car events and was entertained by "drag racing" in between the stock car run-offs.

Yanks Maintain Three Game Loop Lead With 10-6 Win Over Nats

WASHINGTON (AP)—The New York Yankees thrived on inept Washington pitching for a 10-6 victory over the last-place Senators Saturday. Elston Howard pounded across four Yankee runs on a homer and three singles.

With Chicago beating Cleveland 5-1, the Yankees maintained their three-game lead over the White Sox.

Johnny Kucks was credited with his sixth triumph of the season but not without some spectacular aid in relief by Art Ditmar.

Ditmar moved in after Faye Throneberry socked a two-run homer in the seventh. Ditmar squelched the threat, fanning Pete Runnels and Jim Lemon to end the inning.

Five Washington pitchers labored before a paid crowd of 10,511 but only Bud Byerly, last of the string, escaped the Yankee onslaught. He retired all six men to face him in the final two innings.

Miss Alice Mudd Retires From School Board

WINCHESTER — Miss Alice I. Mudd, one of Winchester's best known citizens, has retired as secretary of the Board of Education of Community School Unit No. 1, effective the first of July, thereby ending a career in the Scott County school system of many years. A great number of Winchester residents, for several generations, have had direct contact with Miss Mudd, and will long recall her years of service to the community.

Miss Mudd is a pioneer teacher, beginning her teaching career at the age of eighteen at Union School. After teaching at South College and News Schools she taught in the Winchester Grade School until 1922 when she became County Superintendent of Schools, which office she held for twelve years.

When the Unit School District was organized in 1947 Miss Mudd was the first secretary, managing the office alone until M. F. Fuller became Unit Superintendent. She has continued to work as secretary in the Board of Education and has served as secretary at the regular and special meetings of the Board since it was organized.

In addition to her duties and activities in the schools, Miss Mudd has been prominent in Red Cross work, being Home Service Chairman for over twenty years. She was also the first secretary of the Scott County Draft Board, serving during most of World War II.

She is an active member of the Methodist Church, having served as superintendent of the primary department of the Church School for many years and as a member of the official church board. She has also been active in PEO, being a charter member of Chapter EK when it was organized in 1934.

Miss Mudd makes her home with her niece, Mrs. Ruth Campbell, on North Main St.

Stratton Vetoes Bill Banning Sunday Car Sales

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Stratton vetoed Saturday a bill to ban Sunday sales of autos, saying it would make the state step out of bounds financially.

The bill, which led a stormy live in the legislature, scraped through the Senate to win final approval in the closing days of the session. Its sponsors called it a boon to salesmen, who are required to work on Sundays.

In vetoing the bill, Stratton commented "it is not a proper function of the state to prescribe that a class of citizens shall not engage in a particular occupation on a day of the week."

Only "a clear showing that the health of welfare of the population is vitally involved" would justify such a measure, he added.

A veto was applied to a bill to require general hospitals be equipped with resuscitators beginning next year. Stratton said this would work a hardship on smaller hospitals.

Scores of measures left the governor's desk signed into law including one to penalize public officials who prevent public access to financial records.

More than $150,000 was appropriated to support the work of commissions. Among newly created groups were those to study problems of municipalities, Illinois-Indiana bi-state development, Northeastern Illinois metropolitan area planning, and the Mississippi scenic parkway.

Other study groups approved by Stratton will concentrate on adoptions, county governments, and alcoholic liquor legislation.

A tighter stricter law was authorized, placing stricter financial responsibility on father for upbringing of illegitimate children. The measure aims at cutting down on payments under the aid to dependent children program.

Cities were given authority to license and regulate heliports by ordinance, with Chicago chiefly affected because of its considerable helicopter traffic.

Oct. 13 this year will be the state's first official grandmothers' day, approved by the governor. The bill sets the date as the second Sunday of each year.

Stratton also approved fee hikes for justices of the peace, including a boost from $2 to $3 for marriages.

More Trouble For Family of Arlie Pate

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Troubles continue to beset the family of Korean turncoat Arlie Pate's 54-year-old father, Daniel, said Saturday his wife intends to divorce him and has moved to her daughter's home in East Carondelet, Ill., where Arlie — recently married and jobless — lives.

A reason was given for the separation.

The 26-year-old Arlie returned home from Communist China several months ago.

One of his first acts was to sell livestock to repay the government $500 — the cost of his passage home to the land he spurned more than three years.

Arlie and his dad fought over the sale of the livestock and Arlie left the almost barren 70-acre farm near here to work in St. Louis with his kid brother Donald, 18. Arlie didn't remain long in St. Louis.

With his sons gone, the father was unable to work the land. Saturday he filed suit, seeking to divide the farm between himself and his wife.

"Arlie is in East Carondelet without a job," the father said, "and Donald is in St. Louis. I can't handle the farm by myself. I have to sell it."

Last April Arlie married his first cousin, Miss Barbara Jones of St. Louis. She is 16.

The Kennedy car received slight damage to the rear bumper; the Lewis car, which is owned by the Friendly Cab Company, received damage to the entire front end and rear bumper, and the Benner car received a damaged grill, radiator and front bumper.

Inquests into the deaths of Miss Quinella Webb and Ivan Sweeney, killed in a traffic accident near the Florence bridge late Monday afternoon, were conducted by Scott County Coroner Denton Coonrod Wednesday at 7 p. m. at the court house in Winchester. Witnesses heard were Charles Batley, Highway Patrolman called to the scene of the accident, and Robert Coon, Scott County farmer who was in the field near the scene of the accident and witnessed the collision of the two cars. Plans were discussed for the Legion picnic, Thursday, August 1, with several of the Auxiliary members present. Most of the committee chairmen have been selected and will be announced later. The General Motors Motorama, a highly interesting feature, has been secured through the Marshall Chevrolet Company, and is expected to be a big drawing card for the picnic.

INQUESTS IN TRAFFIC DEATHS
Inquests into the deaths of Miss Quinella Webb and Ivan Sweeney, killed in a traffic accident near the Florence bridge late Monday afternoon, were conducted by Scott County Coroner Denton Coonrod Wednesday at 7 p. m. at the court house in Winchester. The verdict of the jury in both cases was that death was due to crushing blows from a two car collision on Highway 36 less than a mile east of the bridge.

Witnesses heard were Charles Batley, Highway Patrolman called to the scene of the accident, and Robert Coon, Scott County farmer who was in the field near the scene of the accident and witnessed the collision of the two cars. A statement was read from Mrs. Ralph Reeves, of Welsh, Louisiana, owner of the Oldsmobile involved, taken at Illini Hospital in Pittsfield where she was taken for treatment. Mrs. Reeves was one of five passengers and was in the back seat at the time of the accident.

Jurors were Richard Cowick, Cedric Elliott, Harry Hires, Henry Herron, Chester Graves and William Taylor. Richard Cowick served as foreman in the inquest on Miss Webb and Cedric Elliott, was foreman on the Sweeney inquest.

Mrs. Denton Coonrod served as reporter in both inquests.

Morgan 4-H Stock Judges Capture An 'A' Rating

The Morgan County livestock 4-H judging team was given an A rating at the State 4-H livestock judging contest in Urbana on Monday, July 1. Seventy-four counties competed in this contest.

Members of the Morgan team were Melvin Thies, East Side Juniors; Allan Anderson, Victory Ag; Larry Martin, North Side; James Lakamp, Victory Ag; and Gerald Pahlmann, Victory Ag. Thies and Pahlmann received A ratings as individual judges. Only 33 out of the 388 contestants received this rating.

The Morgan County dairy judging team consisted of Jim Haycraft, Franklin Straight Shooters; Arlene Rahe, Victory Ag, and Bill Saxer, East Side Juniors. Haycraft and Arlene Rahe received B ratings as individuals, competing with 330 contestants from 65 counties.

County teams and individuals were ranked in three groups according to the dual merit system of awards. A team ribbon was given to counties with Class A and B judging teams. Ribbons were awarded to individuals placing in Classes A and B. Medals will be awarded to members taking part in national contests later.

Illinois will be represented in national contests in all four divisions of the state contest by teams made up of three individuals and an alternate to be selected from the "A" group of individuals in the state contest.

Dairy and livestock state teams will be selected at an elimination contest at the state fair in Springfield on August 12-13.

Repair Bridges In Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE — Work of repairing county and township highways is getting underway with emergency situations getting the priority. Highway Commissioner James Catt of Jersey Township reported Tuesday afternoon that three of the larger bridges in the township were destroyed by the recent flash floods in addition to the lesser ones.

The main bridge lost by the township is one having a fifty foot span across D Arce Branch on the highway running west past the Frank Fulkerson farm.

Another bridge of fourteen foot span near the Lee Massey farm was lost and the third largest one to collapse was that southeast of the city near the George Erb farm. This structure had a 16 foot span.

Other bridges in the area survived the flood waters. In the area of the twin bridges in the northeastern part of the township the flood waters swept over the structures but failed to move them from their anchorages. One of the twin bridges crosses the Phil's Creek in that locality and the other crosses the Macoupin.

Flood waters were deep and swift at the time of the flash floods of June 14th and a number of cattle were drowned in the area of the twin bridges. Commissioner Catt reported Tuesday that he had counted the carcasses of four cattle in that immediate locality.

Numerous bridges on private property were carried away by the flood waters, and scores of farms in the county are replacing such structures. Sawmills in the county are busy cutting orders for heavy bridge planks to be used in rebuilding the many small private bridges. Hundreds of flood gaps were washed out and these are also being replaced to keep livestock from escaping through such sources.

FARM BUREAU FLOOD DAMAGE SURVEY PLANE STOPS HERE

THE ILLINOIS FARM BUREAU Flood Damage Survey plane stopped at 9:30 a.m. Friday on its first stop of a two day tour of the southern third of Illinois.

The Farm Bureau hopes to secure government emergency loans for farmers who have been hurt hard by this year's floods.

The move was started earlier last week by Otto Steffy, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association. Yesterday he completed his aerial survey of the drowned-out district, roughly that part of the state south of a line from Pike county east to Edgar county.

While in Jacksonville he conferred with a group of farmer representatives from this area before proceeding to E. St. Louis and then to Charleston.

In messages to Gov. William G. Stratton and George H. Reuss, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, Steffy pointed out that "continued heavy rainfall of flood proportions has delayed planting or completely destroyed crops on many farms in south central and southern Illinois. Prospects for producing a crop this year are practically nil."

Steffy added that "Illinois farmers don't want government handouts. If we felt that way, we'd ask that southern Illinois be declared a disaster area for flood relief."

Credit Help Needed "But farmers will need some credit help," he continued.

"Through production emergency loans, farmers can buy feed or obtain credit to tide them over until next year.

"It's not a very pleasant prospect—to see fields that should be waist-high in growing corn laying under a couple of feet of flood water."

In his wire to the governor, he urged that Stratton ask Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson take the necessary steps to make emergency loans available to farmers in the affected area.

Loans at 3% These loans, made at three percent, are made only when normal avenues of credit are closed.

Many farmers whose entire crops have been wiped out face serious financial difficulty without this help, according to Steffy.

Shown in the photo taken at Jacksonville airport are, clockwise: Bob Miller, Morgan Farm Bureau organization director, Farm Adviser E. H. Garlich; Vernon Wear and Leslie Shafer, all Greene county farmers; Steffy; Burl Hornbeck of Winchester, district organization director of the I.A.A.; Val Vincent, Pike county farmer; Joe Ifner, Pike county organization director, and J. E. Brodmarkle, Greene county organization director.

Never before have so many jobs needed so much attention all at once. Besides the usual work of sampling pastures and weighing livestock, corn is being planted in one field, sprayed in another and cultivated in still another. Wheat, oats and fescue are being combined, while both haying and grass silage-making are in full swing. And all of this occurs between showers—frequent showers.

Covering Silage This year some of the grass silage in the trenches is being covered with sawdust alone, and some with plastic that is then covered with sawdust. The plastic will preserve the silage, and the sawdust will keep deer from cutting the plastic with their hoofs as they did last year.

Sheep Sale Sixty yearling purebred rams and ewes will be sold at auction on the Station at 1:00 p.m. (CST) on July 11. Hampshire, Suffolk and Targhees from the Dixon Springs flocks will be offered. A short program on sheep-raising will be held at the sheep barns at 10:30 a.m.

Soil Acidity Degrees of soil acidity are measured by a pH scale. A pH of 7.0 is neutral; above that point is alkaline and below is acid. Unlimed soils on the Station have a pH value of about 5.0. Three to four tons of limestone an acre will raise this value to 6.5-6.8, which is a little short of neutral, but still sweet enough to grow good alfalfa and clover. Most liming recommendations are made to bring the pH value up to about 6.5.

It was on these slightly acid soils that George McKibben, our crops and soils expert, was able to demonstrate that top-dressing pastures with rock phosphate was as good as top-dressing with superphosphates.

Now these fields have been limed to neutral, and George is continuing the top-dressing program to see whether rock phosphate is still as effective as superphosphate on neutral soils.

If you are wondering how much limestone is needed to bring soils similar to the Station soils to neutral, here is the liming schedule:

1936-3 tons an acre
1937-3 tons an acre
1938-2 tons an acre

An "area"—usually a county—can be certified brucellosis-free when the percentage of brucellosis infection falls below 3 percent of the cattle over four months old.

August or early September is a good time to recondition a grass waterway by reshaping and reseeding. Then keep after it until you get a good stand of grass. It's still the best way to stop gully erosion.

1. Deposits of sediment in the middle of the waterway.
2. Water flowing in channels alongside the waterway.
3. Completely eroded patches in the waterway.
4. Poor stand of grass, or weeds instead of grass.

The Lytle suggests that you plan to get your waterway into condition again this fall, or the trouble will continue to snowball. When you see sediment deposits in the bottom of the waterway, for instance, it's a good idea to reshape the area and reseed.

Plowing a dead furrow alongside the waterway is one reason water runs down the slope and cuts a new channel. Or sediment may build up and make the center of the channel higher than the outside. If it does, the channel needs to be reshaped. If the flow of water is large enough to spill over into the field, you'll need to widen and deepen the waterway, Lytle says. This usu-

Plowland & Meadow

Friend Or Foe—Weed Killers Can Be Both

Widespread damage to tomatoes and other crops has occurred this year from careless use of 2, 4-D, reports M. B. Linn, University of Illinois plant pathologist.

This type of injury is not new, he explains. Damage has occurred since 2, 4-D was first used as a weed killer. But, with wider use, reports of damage have become more numerous.

Linn reports that farmers have been spraying cornfields recently with 2, 4-D to control weeds that have gotten out of hand as a result of frequent and heavy rains.

In the past, cornfield spraying has contributed to losses in soybeans, tomatoes, peppers, grapes and other highly susceptible crops.

Because the high-volatile ester form of 2, 4-D and 2, 4, 5-T may release dangerous fumes for several days after spraying, it should not be used under any circumstances, Linn warns. These fumes may be carried for several miles by air currents and damage susceptible plants all along the way.

Not So Dangerous The low-volatile and amine forms are considerably safer, Linn points out. However, the mist from high-pressure spraying operations may be carried several hundred feet. For this reason these forms should not be applied when the wind is blowing from the sprayed area toward susceptible crops.

Those who use 2, 4-D or 2, 4, 5-T should remember that these chemicals can be valuable for killing weeds. But they are not able to distinguish weeds from crop plants. No form, regardless of claims made for it, is safe in the hands of the careless operator, Linn concludes.

Editorial Comment

Decentralizing Government

President Eisenhower is a consistent opponent of excessive federal centralization of power, and has tried from the outset of his administration to pass some of the burdens of government back to the 48 states.

At the recent conference of governors in Williamsburg, Va., the President broached this subject as firmly and fully as he ever has. So far, unhappily for him, he has not drawn the sort of eager response he expected.

Mr. Eisenhower operates in this field on what is really a double premise. He believes big government is bad. But he also believes that Americans today demand performance by government of a great many welfare and other functions, such as highway and school construction.

As he sees it, then, the federal government cannot grow smaller simply by lopping off tasks it performs today and letting them go by the board. Government at other, lower levels must assume the abandoned load.

So he appeals anew to the states to assist him in working out a specific plan for turning back certain powers and programs taken over by Washington in the past two and a half decades.

In accord with his view that it is proper for the states to exercise both initiative and responsibility in these matters, the President wants the governors to name the fields of endeavor they feel the states could best re-enter.

And he would leave to them the additional assignment of suggesting adjustments in the federal-state tax structure which would enable the states to bear a heavier part of the burden.

Over the years there has been a great deal of talk about the dangers of over-centralization, of a monopoly by Washington.

Mr. Eisenhower here proposes, constructively, a practical way to combat those perils. It is a challenge flung vigorously.

If it is not picked up, then those at all levels who want federal government reduced in size have the task of showing what other way it can be done that will satisfy the American people.

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—An exercise to save the government a million and a half dollars a month is being practiced by the U. S. Information Agency with considerable anguish and pain.

Congress cut the agency's fund from the 113 million it had in fiscal 1957 to 95 million for 1958. This is 16 per cent. Most agencies caught in the year's congressional economy wringer have averaged only 5 per cent squeeze.

President Eisenhower had asked for 144 million dollars for USIA in the fiscal year beginning July 1, wanting to expand its operations. At one point, Congress cut it to 89 million, which would have made a real dent in its operations.

USIA Director Arthur Larson still doesn't know exactly what he'll have left. But a few generalizations are possible.

About 800 employees will be dropped. But the 2,000 in the U. S. and the 8,000 overseas will be cut.

Biggest cuts will be in friendly countries, particularly Europe.

Activities in the Middle East and Africa may be increased as these are the new critical areas. Far East programs will probably remain at present levels, maybe down a little.

Voice of America broadcasts beamed at Iron Curtain countries will be continued full force and speed.

A lot of libraries and information centers will have to go. A lot fewer U. S. books will be purchased and distributed.

About the only program that will be stepped up will be foreign language training to make USIA personnel more effective in areas to which they are assigned.

There will be a lot less transferring of information specialists from one country to another and a lot less moving around of their families, to save travel costs.

To the extent that these cuts will make USIA run a tighter, leaner shop, with less waste, there is admission now that the cuts were a healthy thing. But there is no denying, either, that the volume of U. S. information services, to counter Communist propaganda, will be greatly reduced in effectiveness.

The Assignment to determine what not to do any more was given to Deputy Director Abbott Washburn. He called in his 12 department heads. They labored for 13 days and far into 13 nights in a conference room where telephones and call-outs were banned. It developed into one of the hottest sweat-box sessions in bureaucratic history. Examples:

Bob Button, head of broadcasting, held it would be foolish to cut down on television, the newest and fastest growing information medium and one of the most effective.

The weekly "Report From America" sent out on film to over 100 TV stations in 34 countries, has been highly successful. But it's going to be curtailed.

Turner Shelton fought for his moving picture program, whose documentaries have reached millions of people all over the world. But it's going to get the ax, too.

Leland Briggs wanted to save his press service and publications. But many of the printed media will be wiped out.

Dr. James L. Meader protested the closing of many libraries and information centers, where hundreds and thousands are waiting for admission to classes to learn English. Out they go.

What the economists did was work on the assumption they didn't have any program at all. What would they have to create that would be absolutely essential, starting from scratch?

The program they finally came up with then had to be submitted to State Department for approval, to tie in with diplomatic efforts. State wants to keep strong international activities in countries where there were critical or strained relations.

Revised programs for each country were then sent to American ambassador in the field for their approval. This took more time. But replies are now coming back. And by mid-July USIA will know in detail where it's still in business, how much and who will be tending the store.

As God rendered Sodom and Gomorrah into dust, so might the hydrogen bomb be used to destroy modern cities.

Men Need More Love

And Less 'Management'

A man reader has some advice to offer women readers. Says he: "You women wouldn't have to work so hard to try to 'manage' your husbands and to get them to do what you want them to if you would quit talking so much and just occasionally let your husband know you love him.

"You would be surprised at how much it means to a husband to have his wife come up and put her arms around him at some unexpected moment, or really kiss him goodby in the morning or hello in the evening, instead of giving him a formal little peck, or look in his eyes when he is talking to her instead of out the window or at a spot on the carpet.

"Give a man plenty of love and attention—not because of what you want to get out of him but because you think he is a pretty nice guy and living with him is fun—and you women won't have to worry your pretty heads about trying to manage us men."

Well, there it is, women. If you will just quit trying to outtalk, outsmart, and manage your husbands and concentrate on loving them "as is," maybe you can relax and quit worrying because your husband won't do this or insists on doing that.

If he knows without any doubt that he is loved, appreciated and admired, he may not require as much "managing" to be a satisfactory husband.

Why not give it a try? You haven't anything to lose.

You might gain a happier husband, a happier marriage and turn out to be a happier woman.

None of her friends ever hesitates to offer to take her places because she is always ready and waiting when they drive up. The person who has no car and is dependent on others for getting places should make it a habit to be ready on the dot.

Don't make those who are doing you a favor wait on you.

RATTLESNAKE OVER 4 FOOT LONG IS KILLED IN JERSEY

JERSEYVILLE — The largest rattlesnake killed in the Jersey county area this season was found on the farm operated by George Wahle, three miles northeast of Delhi Tuesday afternoon.

Wahle was working ground in the Piasa Creek vicinity when the tractor ran over the reptile. Wahle got off the machine and completed dispatching the rattler.

The snake measured a fraction of an inch more than fifty inches in length and had ten rattles and the customary button. Rattlesnakes are seldom found in the southeastern Jersey county area, but several have been found and killed in that locality during the past ten years.

The prevailing wet season with its flash floods and high waters may be the cause for snakes appearing far from their usual habitats. Copperheads have been killed in several areas of the county since the heavy rains hit the locality.

Rattlesnakes are frequently found and killed in the western Jersey county area in the townships of Elsie, Quarry, Rosedale and Richwoods. The limestone bluffs found in the localities seem to be preferred by the rattlers which frequent the district.

CENTENNIAL BALLOON ASCENSIONClaude L. Shafer, Parachute Jumper

The Ashland Centennial program will feature two balloon ascensions during the week. On Thursday and Friday afternoons between 4:00 and 5:00 p. m. Professor Claude L. Shafer of Indianapolis, Ind., will attempt to break his own altitude record of 5442 feet in a gas balloon. Suspended from this balloon, which is almost one hundred feet in height, and grasping a two inch steel rod with his hands, his only means of returning safely to earth is by parachute.

The rattler killed by Wahle Tuesday afternoon is identified as a type of timber rattler which reach unusually large size compared to the smaller species which frequent bluffs and localities. Wahle's postoffice is Route 2, Brighton, Ill.

Wild Flower Of The Month

WILD BERGAMOT
By Emma Mae Leonhard

What are weeds? Some people would say that they are the big vigorous plants which they just can't get rid of and which they don't want. Yet those same weeds in some regions have been sought out, moved to another area or another country, and cultivated in gardens as coveted flowers.

Our most beautiful roses have had little wild roses as their ancestors, and these same little thorny briars were probably unwanted in many a region. Perhaps weeds are flowers out of place.

What ever they may be, our wild-flower of the month for July, the Wild Bergamot, has that vigor and sturdiness of weeds. This Wild Bergamot does not have the usual long and dusty roadside, it may fall in the path of the farmer's foot or the sickle. And it may stand erect and in monotonous masses, unnoticed by the hurrying motorist.

However, roadside and fence-row flowers do paint a picture in the open country and are as truly wild flowers as were the violets and the columbine in the spring. They survive the dust storms, the wind, the rain, and the scorching rays of the sun to ornament the parched dreary scene.

In July, among the spikes of the bright blue-purple of the Vervain, the royal purple of Ironweed, and the yellow of the large and small Sunflowers, stand the erect, square-stemmed stems of the Wild Bergamot to the kingdom of flowers.

Centennial Exposition

By Mabel Hall Goltra

There have been a great many exhibitions in the past. One of the earliest occurred during the reign of Ahasuerus as it is written in the "Book of Esther" in the Bible.

In the third year of his reign he "showed the riches of his kingdom" five hundred and twenty-seven years before Christ. "White, green and blue hangings fastened with cords of fine linen and beds of gold and beds of silver on a pavement of red and blue marble and vessels of gold" were displayed.

Many international exhibitions were held during the Middle Ages. In 1787 the first French exposition was held in Paris and the London exposition followed in 1862.

U.S. Hundredth Birthday
In 1876 the great Centennial Exposition was held in Philadelphia, Pa., to commemorate the One Hundredth Anniversary of American Independence, and they invited other countries to join in it. It joined a National Celebration with an International Exhibition, identifying the independence and history of America with the industrial art and progress of the world.

In December, 1866, Professor J. L. Campbell of Washington College, Indiana, wrote to the Hon. Morton McMichael, Mayor of Philadelphia, suggesting that an International Exposition be held in that city and gave the many reasons why it should be held there.

It was not until 1870 that the resolutions were adopted and over one hundred United States commissioners were appointed by Ulysses S. Grant, eighteenth president of the United States.

Philadelphia provided Fairmount Park, with one exception, the most beautiful park in the world, as a site for the exposition. It consisted of 2740 acres.

The commissioners decided the sum of $10,000,000 would be necessary to carry out their plans. The state of Pennsylvania was very liberal and contributed the sum of $2,500,000, and private subscriptions brought the amount

TO THE RESCUE

Being a "bird doctor" is no simple task, but such service always comes to bird lovers sometime.

Perhaps the period of the greatest number of calls for help is now. So many dangers surround baby birds.

Bad wind and rain storms sometimes tip the nest up and spill the baby birds out. Cats lurk around and sometimes kill the mother birds and leave the babies to starve. Occasionally a baby bird that is too ambitious tries its wings too soon and falls to the ground.

If you find a young bird on the ground, you should try to place it in a nearby bush or tree. Many times the mother bird is near and will take over feeding the little one. You will at least get it out of the easy path of stray cats.

If you must or want to care for a young bird, the steps which you take should be as much like those in nature as possible. Here are seven suggestions to follow:

1. Make a substitute nest. A shoe-box with a mat of grass, excelsior, or bits of paper will do.
2. Keep the bird warm by covering the substitute nest with a cloth, especially at night. Always keep the bird out of a draft.
3. Give the bird food including calcium, vitamins, and proteins. The basic food is mashed yolks of hard-boiled eggs and finely sifted bread crumbs slightly moistened with milk or cod-liver oil. Good supplementary food is canned dog food, bits of bananas, cherries, grapes, raisins, or soft apple pulp; bits of scraped or finely chopped beef; chopped green leaves and stems of water-cress and nasturtiums. A little cottage cheese or aged bird feed will help now and then.

4. Feed the bird by opening its mouth and poking the food well back into its throat. Don't overfeed it; it knows when it has had enough.

5. Feed it not much at a time but frequently: 15, 20, or at least 30 minutes apart—from early in the morning until dusk.

6. Don't force the bird to drink. It gets moisture from the food.

7. Give the bird some sunshine, but not too much. Shade it from midday sun.

You see that it takes much patience and care to save a baby bird's life, but some kind people get much satisfaction in doing so.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

By Dorris Walsh Hendrickson

Look, boys and girls, here come our marchers—and we will hear about two parties next! (Some of our marchers are a bit late for our own June Parade, but I am sure you July Birthdays are glad to have them join you.)

Trudy Diane Brookhouse, Chapin, June 28, age 3

Ronald Rynders, Waverly, June 29, age 5

Gail Rowland, 503 S. Prairie, June 30, age 11

Jerry Wayne White, RR 5, Jacksonville, July 12, age 3

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to each and every one of you four!

Jane Kays' Party
Jane Ann Kays, of Arenzville, 5 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Kays, entertained little friends at a birthday party Friday afternoon, June 21, at her home.

Games were played, and the guests were David Quigg, Eddie Winkelman, Susan Lovekamp, John Wessler, Billy Privia, Jimmy Stock, Shelly Orr, Kathleen and Kristine Kays.

A birthday cake was the centerpiece for the table, and refreshments of ice cream and cup cakes were served by Mrs. Kays, assisted by Mrs. Marilyn Orr. Favours were nut cups filled with candy, and party hats and party horns were given to each child.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward K. Ballard of Roodhouse entertained with a party for their son, Larry, on his eighth birthday anniversary Thursday, June 20, in the afternoon and evening.

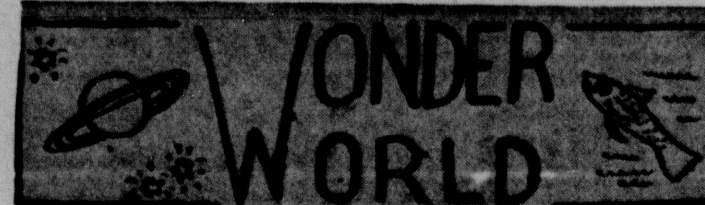

Mr. and Mrs. Ballard drove to Jacksonville with Larry and his guests, Bill Hunt, Guy Manning, Stevie Reagor, and Terry Sheppard, where the group enjoyed recreation in Nichols Park followed by a picnic supper.

Your Birthday
To march in the Birthday Parade, just send in your name, address, age and birthdate—2 or more weeks before your birthday. You may send it as early as you like (we have some December Marchers lining up already) and we will save it until the Sunday nearest before your birthday.

If you have a party, you may write and tell us about that later.

Sliced cooked Brussels sprouts may be drenched in a marinade of oil, vinegar, salt, pepper, prepared mustard and a sprinkle of sugar. Serve as a salad on greens. Be sure the sprouts are cooked only until tender crisp.

TIGER BARBS
By Ray Broekel

I consider the Tiger Barb one of the most beautiful of the aquarium fishes.

It has one bad habit, however, which doesn't recommend it as the ideal community aquarium fish. It has the bad habit of bullying other fishes, and it doesn't care how big the other fish is either.

For this reason it is best to keep Tigers by themselves if possible.

Its correct scientific name is Barbus tetrazona, but it is often incorrectly known as Barbus sumatranus.

Its original home is in the eastern world, mainly Malay to Borneo.

Large adults often reach the length of two inches, although 1 1/2 inch adults are more common.

Orange-Red Fins
The bands on the body are solid black. The fins are all orange-red, with the dorsal (top) having some black on it. The rest of the body is a creamish-white in color.

Tiger Barbs are egg layers and move actively about a tank. As mentioned above, they are bullies, and they especially like to pick on slow-moving fishes, such as Siamese Fighting Fishes and Angel Fishes.

The tetrazona part of the scientific name means that they are four-banded.

The Big Little Guy

By Ray Broekel

Part 1: CLOSE BALL GAME
The neighborhood team, the Panthers, was getting ready for its week-end game with the Tigers. The captain, Billy Wilson, was busily instructing Sally McGovern on how to play right field correctly.

"Now look, Sally," said Billy, "whenever the ball is hit out to right field, chances are, the Tigers are going to try to take extra bases because you're a girl."

"I'm sure they will," laughed Sally, "but they don't know that I can throw better than a lot of boys."

"That's right, Sally. And we're hoping to catch a few of them off base before they catch on to the fact that you can throw."

Sally trotted out to the outfield for some practice as Billy walked over to the players' bench.

"Gee," thought Billy to himself, "I sure hope we can beat the Tigers tomorrow. For the last two years they've managed to beat us. If everything goes all right I think we can do it this time."

Charley Jones, the pitcher, was warming up with Harry Lucas, the catcher. Billy stopped a few moments to see how Charley was getting along.

"How does your arm feel, Charley?"

"Fine, Billy. Never felt better. The way I feel now the Tigers will act like a bunch of kittens tomorrow."

Billy chuckled and continued on his way to the bench.

"Hi there, Andy," said Billy as he saw little Andy Brown sitting on a corner of the bench.

"Hi, Billy," replied Andy. "Do you think I'll be able to play tomorrow?"

Billy didn't say anything for a moment as he sat down on the bench.

"Oh, you know how it is, Andy. Tomorrow's a big game. If we beat the Tigers we'll be in a good position to win the town championship."

"You say that about every game, Billy," said Andy sadly.

Andy Is Too Little
"Yes, I guess I do, Andy. If you want to know the truth about it, I guess I should tell you. You're just too small. Why you can hardly swing a bat up at the plate."

Andy replied brightly, "But if I choke up on the bat I'm sure I could hit the ball."

"Oh, come on now, Andy. You'd have to choke the bat half way up the handle. If you tried to swing it then you'd knock yourself over."

"But," continued Andy, "even if I couldn't do anything at bat at least I could catch balls hit in the outfield."

"I'm afraid it's no use, Andy," continued Billy. "You're just too little to play ball with the Panthers. Maybe you'll grow up in a few years. Then maybe we'll be able to use you."

Little People Can Make Good
Andy got dejectedly up from the bench. So what if he was little? There were lots of little people who had made good. Why the Panthers hadn't even really given him a chance to show what kind of a ball player he was!

But Andy was not one to hold grudges. His grandfather had once told him an old saying that had stuck with Andy for a long time. That old saying was, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Brown pork chops in a heavy iron skillet, then arrange in a baking dish. Spoon some apple sauce over each chop, dust with nutmeg and bake in a moderate oven until the meat is fork-tender.

Sugar Bowl To Fish

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 1: Riverboat Days

Carlina was a little girl who liked to help her father in his country store. Before she could see over the counter, she followed him up and down the aisles learning where the flour and sugar barrels stood and where the butter crocks were.

She could not touch any of the things on the shelves, but when she could stand on tiptoe and reach the spool drawer she could lay black or white thread in his hand as he folded a purchase of dress material.

From the doorway, they watched the steamboats come to their landing and saw boxes and barrels of freight piled on the bank. The dray carried them all to their store, while the steamboat, "Lady Lee" or the "Calhoun," backed away with great puffs of smoke to paddle on up the river.

When wheat harvest came, Carlina's father had sacked wheat to be freighted down-river to the Flour Mills. He bought load after load from his farm customers.

Carlina watched the sky too, for she knew that rain must not fall on the wheat sacks waiting on the sandy river bank, yet it must be ready when the boat whistled for their landing. After dark, she saw the watchman's lantern moving about the sacks and knew that all must be well or her father and brothers would be called out in the night.

Shipping Day
On shipping day, the boat might be late if there was much freight upstream, but at least someone would hear the great engine puffs and the boat would pull in. Carlina ran to the landing to see sack after sack loaded on board by a long line of deck hands walking up the gangplank and trotting down for more, until every sack was safely on deck and ready for its journey to the mills.

Last of all, crates of chickens, a few pigs, and perhaps a calf or two must not be forgotten. Carlina's father watched all the loading carefully until the "Lady Lee" was ready to leave.

When it turned to steam down the river, Captain Rice waved to Carlina, for he lived only a short way from their home. Then the little girl and her father went back to the store to see who wanted what there.

When there were not too many whoos and whats, Carlina went with her mother for a short call on Mrs. Rice. They could not stay long for someone might want to match braids or buttons at the store, but before they went home Mrs. Rice took Carlina's hand and led her to the dining room.

There on the table stood a very large sugarbowl filled with lumps of white sugar, one of these was put in Carlina's hand to eat on the way home.

After Earth Satellite

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

After the completion of the earth satellite launching next year, the next step will probably be to launch a series of 'larger' earth satellites. Actually, there are already some tentative plans for this.

Of course, the present plans will have to be changed according to the results of the earth satellite program.

These larger satellites will probably be built right into the nose of the rocket, and will be large enough to carry television equipment and animals for experimental purposes.

After the launching of these larger temporary earth satellites, a permanent earth satellite will be launched into an orbit about 500 miles above the earth's surface. This first permanent unmanned satellite will probably be about the size of the first 20-foot diameter, beach-ball size satellites which are being launched this year.

This smaller lighter satellite will probably be launched into a permanent satellite by a 3-stage rocket similar to the one used to launch the larger temporary satellite. Less weight, with the same amount of fuel, would send the smaller satellite higher.

In 1958-60
Several of these permanent satellites will probably be launched and a larger satellite capable of carrying television cameras will be built and launched also. This in this column.

Next time: M.A.N. ENTERS SPACE. If you have a question, send it in and it will be answered in this column.

will probably be in about the years 1958 to 1960.

About 1965, if it's thought to be worthwhile, permanent television stations will probably be launched. These would be about the size of the second earth satellites, and they would hold television relay or transmitter devices. They will probably look something like flying saucers.

Dry yeast does not dissolve easily in milk; that's why modern recipes suggest it be sprinkled over warm water.

RELIEVED to have made his decision, Garde settled down to work, knowing happiness at being on somewhat firm ground with Nan. As popular as she was, she would not have called Garde if she didn't like him. And that was a fine start for the project which he had in mind.

He cleared up his morning office list, he made a house call or two, helped Cornel with some emergency surgery and during the afternoon took over two new babies for Rubie; he was also asked to help the obstetrician persuade one of the mothers not to nurse her child. Rubie asked for that help.

"There's a strong history of breast cancer in her family," he stewed.

"Can't you just tell her not to do it?"

"No. That's not enough. She may have other children, and another obstetrician and I feel she should know that the milk factor as an inciter of cancer is determined enough for her to avoid the risk. Ever."

"I'll talk to her," Garde promised. The staff men were gathered for one of their frequent sessions at the end of the day. There was nothing prearranged or formal about these meetings. The doctors had come there to change their clothes before going home, and now they talked. Rubie was sitting on the coffee table, meticulously dressed, as always. Today he wore a dark blue fannel suit, a pink shirt and a narrow silk tie of pale gray. Cornel on the other extreme, had pulled an ancient corduroy coat over his yellow T-shirt; he was going to play golf. Windsor was struggling with a pullover sweater, and Garde was wearing no more than a bath towel around his hips.

"Get some clothes on, Shelton,"

Ruble prodded him. "I'll introduce you to the mother, then you better go home and take a nap, because I discharged the Kennedy baby today."

Windsor and Cornel groaned. Garde looked at them.

"You won't have to for long, boy," Dewey promised. "The Kennedys—you know them?"

"I know her," said Garde calmly. "I've already told her there wasn't a thing to do about the kid's bat ears. I told her they were hereditary, and any taping or tying would only hold 'em down temporarily." He straightened from tying his shoes. "She didn't believe me, but they'll fly out just the same."

"And what will you say to her," asked Rubie, "when she calls you at 12:45 tonight to tell you the baby is crying?"

"And you must come over right away, Doctor!" said Windsor in a high falsetto.

GARDE looked at his friends. "Why, I've worked up a little routine," he said. "For new babies, and especially for new babies of slightly overage parents."

"Yeah," Dewey confirmed. "The Kennedys have been married about 10 years, and this is their first. And about 12:30 tonight."

"She'll call about two," Garde corrected. "Frantic because the baby's been crying since midnight. But you're right, she'll say I must come right over."

"You goin'?"

"I'll not even get out of bed. The baby went home in fine shape this afternoon."

"All right, Mr. Bones, then what will you do?"

Garde grinned and stuffed in his shirt tail. "It's a simple routine, and so far it has worked. First, I ask, 'What kind of soap do you have in the house?' Whatever the brand it is, I ask them to try to get a bar of another kind. That'll take a while, and I shall have told Louise to have Marion whistle a soap stick two inches long and an eighth of an inch in diameter.

"You always have to do four or five because the first few break. Well, then, once they do get a stick the right size, the mother is to insert it properly and wait. When it comes out, I've told the mother, if the baby isn't asleep, they're to call me and I'll come right over. Now the Kennedys may be different, but to date I haven't had a second call."

His colleagues regarded him with awe. Cornel tiptoed out of the room; Windsor silently shook Garde's hand.

HE went with Rubie to see the new mother, and managed to advise her without frightening her; then he returned to his office. Hoping to qualify before too long for a fellowship in the College of Physicians, he was keeping a record on tape of cases as might be useful to him at the time of the board examinations.

He sat down at his desk, snapped on the light and opened the drawer where he kept the recorder. With his arm outstretched to plug the gadget into the receptacle, he was struck with an odd feeling—not new by any means, but tonight especially keen—that he was no longer Garde Shelton, but the man in whose chair he sat, at whose desk he worked. Using Lillard's pen, his books, his office, there had been a slow and steady transposition of character. He still was Garde, but that friendly little session in the doctor's room seemed to have been a strong push to complete the change-over. And markedly tonight there seemed to be not much left of Garde Shelton in this office or in this clinic building where he had followed Kurt's footsteps until they had become his own, where he did the things that other doctor had done, talked as he had talked...

Which was all very well if Garde Shelton wanted to be Kurt Lillard; if he was willing to stop being Garde Shelton.

Engineer Leaves Wabash After 48 Years

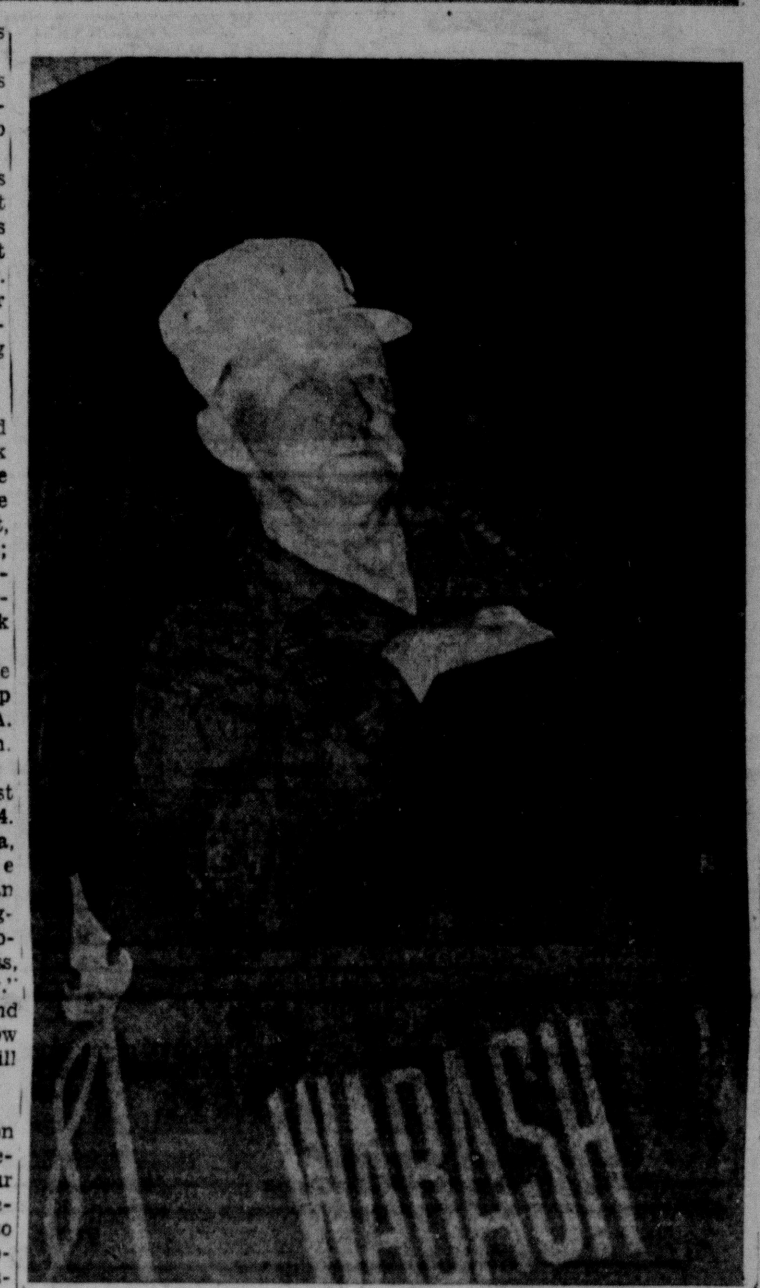

H. R. VANNIER of Bluffs has fooled his friends.

He told everybody that he was retiring from the railroad effective July 1, but nobody seemed to believe him.

When this photograph was taken on what he called "my last run," his crew was offering odds that he'd be back on the job just as soon as his vacation was over.

But now he's showing a letter from the Wabash railroad accepting his retirement and thanking him for 48 years of service.

On Final Run

The photo shows Vannier and his crew standing on the deck of No. 469, locomotive for the Bluffs - Meredosia - Jacksonville local freight. They are from left, R. B. Mains, brakeman, Bluffs; Fay Westfall, Valley City, brakeman; Engineer Vannier; Tom Bemis, Versailles, fireman and Frank Yeakel, Meredosia, conductor.

Vannier is now 69 years old. He well recalls his first "pay" trip as fireman for Engineer C. A. House on the Pittsfield branch. That was on Nov. 22, 1909.

And he hasn't forgotten his first trip as an engineer, back in 1924. It was a through freight extra, Springfield to Hannibal. Joe Smith of Bluffs was the fireman and Robert Manafee of Springfield was the conductor. The locomotive was of the old 2300 class, better known as "The Mud Scow."

It wouldn't run very fast, and firemen on it often wondered how it could travel so slowly and still burn so much coal.

First and Last

Vannier has set two records on the Wabash. He ran the first diesel in test runs over the Decatur division of the Wabash, from Decatur to Hannibal, and he also ran the last coal-burning locomotive on the entire Wabash system—from Meredosia to Bluffs in February, 1956.

He had two accidents during his engineering days. The main drive rod broke and went through the boiler and Vannier was gassed and burned and sent to the hospital.

"But this didn't scare me as much as when I was handling a troop train during World War II and was running about 50 miles an hour near Buffalo when the back drive wheel broke. I wasn't hurt that time, just scared."

More Trapschooting

Mr. and Mrs. Vannier (she is the former Minnie Schuessler of Bluffs) will continue to make their home in Bluffs.

Retirement to him primarily means more time to indulge in his favorite sport, trapschooting, and to attend more tournaments, "which is something you can't do much of if you're a working man."
